FORT MASON CENTER

June 1988

POETRY AS PERFORMING ART

Last year's National Poetry Week was a smashing success, drawing capacity crowds to hear poets from all over the country. Even so, Herman Berlandt, director of the Poetry Film Workshop at Fort Mason, is not content. He's determined that National Poetry Week II will be an even greater event. The Workshop has begun a series of special "evenings of poetry" to raise the needed funds, as well as raise the poetic consciousness of the Bay Area.

The first program will be the 8th Young Poets Gathering, hosted by Poetry: San Francisco Quarterly. The evening, open to poets 25 and under, is titled "Young Poets Speak Out!" This reading may be unpredictable, but it promises to be exciting. "There needs to be a forum for young poets," says Berlandt. "Poetry is becoming more of a performing art and needs to be off the printed page." This evening is one of the few opportunities for young poets to present their work to the public. An intergenerational open mike reading will follow the main presentation. The Young Poets program will be presented on June 3.

"An Evening of Vaudeville Poets" will be both entertaining and enlightening, focusing on the often neglected role of humor in poetry. There will be a large crew of stand-up comics on hand to perform their own poems and "poetic monologues." This is a chance to see and hear such local luminaries as Chris Trian and Deirdre Evans, self-proclaimed pagans and practitioners of druid traditions, and Vampire Mike, famous for his "Vampire Poems." Others on the bill include Vernon Edgar, Bruce Isaacson, Scarlet Harlot, Deborah Fruchey, Susinn Duffy, David Frankel, Danielle Willis, and Julia Vinograd. "Vaudeville Poets" will be appearing on June 10.

The third program of the month is "A Century of Gay Poetry." "People are sometimes shocked to find out that their favorite poets were gay," says Berlandt. "But I think it's important for people to know that gay poets didn't just write gay poetry." This reading will be hosted by local poet and scholar Neeli Cherkovski. Among the poets represented will be Walt Whitman, Gertrude Stein, W. H. Auden, Robert Duncan, Allen Ginsberg, Judy Grahn, Jean Cocteau, Cavafy, Frank O'Hara, Harold Norse, Rimbaud and Adrienne Rich. An open reading will follow the main presentation. This program is scheduled for June 17.

"Painters As Poets" is the final program of the month, to be hosted by Berlandt. Not many people are aware that some of the best-known painters and sculptors were also poets. Many of the Dadaists and Surrealists, like Marcel Duchamp and Apollinaire, felt right at home in many mediums. Pablo Picasso wrote a number of "silly poems." Michelangelo wrote a series of poems dedicated to a lost love. Other poet-artists were Paul Klee, Max Ernst, Jean Arp and Andre Breton. Also represented in the program will be writers who were also graphic artists, including William Blake, D. H. Lawrence, e.e. cummings and Kenneth Patchen. A special added attraction will be an exhibition of prints by some of the featured poet-artists. This program will be presented on June 24.

All of the June programs will be held on Fridays at 7:30pm. Admission is $2 for each evening and will go towards the production costs of National Poetry Week II, to take place from October 14 through 23 this year.

The Poetry Workshop will also present special "Round Robin Readings" every Sunday evening in June, at 7:30pm. Bring your own or your favorite author's poetry for a wide-open round-table reading. Admission is $1.

For more information about the weekly poetry programs, poetry readings, or National Poetry Week II, call the Poetry Film Workshop at 621-3073.

The San Francisco Folk Music Center presents the 12th Annual Free Folk Festival on June 4 and 5 in Buildings A and C at Fort Mason. Billed as "A gift to San Francisco," this event is primarily participatory. Everyone is urged to bring "your fiddles and your dancin' shoes!" Workshops are planned, including sessions on rounds, political songs, gospel, harmony and choir singing, bluegrass banjo, celtic fiddle, healing songs and silly songs, women's songs and male chauvinist pig songs, and Scots murder ballads. Dance workshops include square, contra, and clog dancing, East Coast swing, belly and morris dancing, and several varieties of European folk dance. All dances will be taught. There will be workshop sessions for kids, too. There will be goodies by Uhuru House and musical merchandise for sale. The Festival is presented in conjunction with the San Francisco Folk Music Club, the Fort Mason Foundation, and the Golden Gate National Recreation Area. Hours are Saturday, June 4 from 11am to 11:30pm and Sunday, June 5 from 11am to 9pm. If you'd like to volunteer to help supervise kids at the workshops, call 653-8866. # MEMORIES OF THE PEACE CORPS

On November 2, 1960, at the Cow Palace in San Francisco—one week before the presidential election—John F. Kennedy made a formal commitment to a "peace corps." As President, he included what became the organization's philosophy in his Inaugural Address: "To those peoples in the huts and villages of half the globe struggling to break the bonds of mass misery we pledge our best efforts to help them help themselves." The Peace Corps was created on March 1, 1961 by Executive Order, and with the help of 120,000 American volunteers has been helping people help themselves ever since.

These volunteers have stories to tell, and "An Evening With The Peace Corps" at Fort Mason offers memories, slides and artifacts from places all around the world. These programs allow the public and those interested in joining the Peace Corps a chance to hear first-hand experiences from returned volunteers.

Overseas operations are administered through three regions: sub-Saharan Africa; Central and South America and Caribbean nations, comprising Inter-America; and North Africa, the Near East, Asia and the Pacific, or NANEAP. Those attending the presentations can see one of three separate slide programs, each from one of the regions. Also on view are some of the artifacts that have been brought back from Haiti, Kenya, Morocco or one of the other sixty nations the Peace Corps serves. Following the slide program, everyone is invited to ask questions.

About 5,400 Peace Corps volunteers and trainees are currently serving, and for over twenty-five years they have offered skills in programs ranging from maternal and child health to fresh-water fisheries.

The goals of the Peace Corps, as originally set by Congress, remain: to help promote world peace and friendship; to help developing countries meet their needs for skilled men and women; to help promote mutual understanding between the people of the United States and those of developing nations.

Peace Corps programs are held regularly at Fort Mason. "An Evening With The Peace Corps" is free and open to the public. This month's event is on June 1 in Building C from 7 to 9pm. To RSVP, or for more information, call 974-8754.
